CFS reports jobless increase

By Michelle Moser

An examination of current unemployment by the Canadian Federation of Students (CFS) shows that the jobless rate has risen compared to the summer of 1982 despite the fact that many have found part-time or seasonal jobs.

Student income surveys are among the top sources of funds that support the student who has no employment directly related to the student body in the summer or low season.

Although the student body has risen for July 1983 from 60,000 to 65,000, the increase in unemployment is not as high as last year. The unemployment rate for students in July 1982 was 15.5 per cent, while in July 1983 it was 14.5 per cent.

The CFS also reports that the unemployment rate for students in July 1983 was 14.5 per cent, while in July 1982 it was 15.5 per cent. The CFS also reports that the unemployment rate for students in July 1983 was 14.5 per cent, while in July 1982 it was 15.5 per cent.

This phenomenon of an increase in unemployment is clearly being ignored by the government.

every budget. When a student is required to work the part-time job, the student is not working for the government. The government is not working for the student.

The government is not working for the student. The government is not working for the student. The government is not working for the student. The government is not working for the student.

The government is not working for the student. The government is not working for the student. The government is not working for the student. The government is not working for the student.

The government is not working for the student. The government is not working for the student. The government is not working for the student. The government is not working for the student.

Tutoring continues

For the third semester the new Dean Charles "Corny" Campbell is offering to pay tutoring services. This semester is a system that teaches students to study with junior students in the same program who expect more academic difficulties in college.

A reading program is signed by the dean and the students serving the students five dollars. The dean expects to have more by the end of the year.

Charles Campbell is the Dean, editing and Information Systems. The program has little continuity.

An advisor who is not up with the student's study is discouraged. The student is the real problem. The student has to be a tutor. The dean expects to have more by the end of the year.

The program was selected from among the other programs in the college. The dean expects to have more by the end of the year.

It is expected that the program will be successful in a year. The dean expects to have more by the end of the year.

Tutoring services have been the program to be successful in a year. The dean expects to have more by the end of the year.

Charles Campbell is the Dean, editing and Information Systems. The program has little continuity.

At the end of the semester, the student will be asked to do an evaluation. The program has been selected as the best.

If you feel that you need help, especially during the first few weeks of the school year, it is a good idea to get a tutor. You can talk to Charles Campbell at the Dean's Office.

The job of a tutor is to help students understand and to help them learn more about the program.
